MARCUS LAMB

"One night while watching Marcus Lamb preach, he said, "God is saying, I will take away the pain, but not the memory." I knew that word was for me. I have been through great trauma and still haunted by what I did. I went to bed that night full of great hope and early that morning I felt the Holy Spirit come over me removing the pain, shame and guilt. That was two years ago and I am still free! Thank you Rev. Lamb for obeying God's voice!"

FROM A MOTHER'S HEART

WITH MARILYN HICKEY

Q: How would you encourage the mothers that feel overlooked and under-appreciated?

A: Mother's Day comes but once a year and that bouquet of flowers or sentimental card is lovely, but what about the other 364 days where you say to yourself, "do my children even appreciate what I do for them?" Don't be discouraged because it will not always be that way. Rather encourage yourself by encouraging others. Find a mother with young children and share an encouraging word or offer support. Sowing into other people somehow turns our emotions from a negative to a positive. You may not always experience immediate appreciation when you have the role of the mother, but it will come. So while you're waiting for encouragement, pour blessings into others.

Q: A lot of times, mothers feel inadequate. What are some moments you didn't feel enough as a mother, and how did God change your perspective?

A: When Sarah was born, it frightened me because I thought, "How could I be a good mother?" We have those moments with our children, especially when they have challenging needs and we don't always know how to meet their needs. It's then that you really have to trust God. If you are a person who knows Scripture, it really helps for you to speak those Scriptures out loud for yourself and to the situation.

Q: How would you encourage mothers who have trouble letting their kids go, whether that be towards something God is calling them to, or a job, spouse, or living situation?

A: Mothers know from the onset that there will come a day when our children will no longer be dependent on us. After all, has that not been the focus of parenthood all along?

Train up a child in the way he should go, And when he is old he will not depart from it. (Proverbs 22:6 NKJV).

The Word doesn't say when he is old he will not depart from you. It says "it" meaning their training. Training endures. It is not easy releasing them, but what helped me was prayer. I had Christian mothers that were friends pray with me and speak promises with me. A community of faith is a tremendous avenue of help during those trying times.

Q: What would you say to that mother who gave it her best, but feels like her child still ended up on the wrong path?

A: We have to encourage ourselves in the Lord. If you pour the Word into them, speak the Word over them and prayer, you have to believe that God will accomplish His Word. You will eventually get fruit from the seed you've sowed. Take the promises, hang on to them; and they will help you because no parent ever thinks they did it all right. We can always look at the things we probably could've done better or things that we didn't even do. There has to be a trusting in God for the things that you can't do or didn't do.

Q: If you could come up with the perfect prayer or anthem for mothers, what would it say?

A: It would simply say, "Father, help me in the name of Jesus to plant in my children the wisdom that You have for them. Help me trust You like you say in Psalms 139 that my child has a definite destiny and You will give me the wisdom and understanding to put into them what is needed for their purpose on this earth. I believe Your Word is wisdom to me. Help me apply it to the different stages and the process of my child's aging in Jesus' name. Amen!

Q: What's the importance of praying over your children as a mother?

A: It's important because, simply stated, prayer just works and it is equally important to be a Spirit-filled mother. When you don't know how or what to pray, pray in the Spirit.

Perhaps we see that our children are not doing the things we believe they should in order to have a good life. We can pray Proverbs 11:21 and believe that our children, the seed of the righteous, will be delivered and we need not condemn ourselves. Remember that we are the righteousness of God through Christ Jesus and they are our seed and He will watch over them.

Prayer reminds God of His promises over your children and your children's children.

All your children shall be taught by the LORD, and great shall be the peace of your children. (Isaiah 54:13 NKJV)

Q: Give our readers an invitation to watch "Marilyn and Sarah" on Daystar!

Having Jewish blood from my father's side, I was so pleased to see a Christian network who has a heart for Israel and the Jewish people. I love the program, the wonderful guests you have on, the singers, and the heavy involvement of the Lamb family. Thank you so much, and God bless your network!"

"Because of my health and the fact that a mobile chair is my legs, my world feels much smaller now, and I can't really enjoy the things I used to. But I am so thankful for 'Reflections' on Daystar. Thank you so much for the beautiful verses mixed with music and nature. It brings so much peace and joy to my room and circumstances!"
