"In a blended family, things can get emotionally complicated and very painful at times. But watching Joni Table Talk has helped us connect and communicate better than ever. I used to dread the silence around the dinner table during the holidays. Now, I can't wait to gather and give praise to God!"

EMBRACING GRACE IN EVERY SEASON

WITH JOSEPH PRINCE

Q: As Christians all over the world celebrate Christmas this month, which holiday traditions are Prince Family favorites?

A: We like to gather around the piano with our loved ones and friends for a time of caroling—my favorite songs are timeless classics like Silent Night, O Holy Night and Joy to the World. But beyond the holiday traditions, I love how Christmas is a time when we celebrate the birth of our Lord Jesus and His great love for us. He came such a long way from heaven to earth for us, and humbled Himself to be born as a baby so He could walk among us as Immanuel, feel the whole gamut of human emotions, and eventually die on the cross for our sins. Doesn't that just warm your heart?

Q: When you reflect on the gifts you've received over the years, which one has meant the most to you, and why?

A: Because I just love the Word of God, Bibles are always special gifts to me. And of all the Bibles I've received, the one that is most special would be my Dad's Bible. He gave it to me just before he went home to the Lord. It's got his notes and inscriptions, and his thoughts as he was studying the Word. I can just see him reading the Word, meditating on it, and feeling refreshed and blessed...it just brings back such precious memories for me.

Q: For many, the Christmas season is a sad time due to loneliness, the loss of a loved one, family conflict and other heartbreaking issues. What would you say to encourage those experiencing that this time of year?

A: I'd like to encourage anyone going through a difficult time this season with this message: Wherever you are, the Lord loves you. He is there with you in your pain and when you feel all alone. There's a beautiful promise in Hebrews 13:5 that reminds us of how He will never ever leave nor forsake us. If you're broken-hearted, grieving, or crushed in spirit, the Lord is so near you. He is your strength and your support. Whatever your situation, turn your eyes upon Jesus, and let Him be your very present help, and the glory and lifter of your head. If you're hurting, learn also to draw comfort and strength from the body of Christ by being part of a local church community. There is a special anointing that is released when God's children gather together—even just two or three of us (see Matt. 18:20). Don't wait for Christmas to be connected. The Christian life is not meant to be lived alone, but with kingdom friends.

Q: How can a deeper understanding of God's love and grace carry us through every season of life?

A: Grace is God's favor that's unmerited, unearned, and undeserved. Knowing that God's grace is available to you in every season of life—whether you're on a mountain high or valley low—opens the door for you to receive help, encouragement, healing, and all that you need from Him in every situation. When we know it is not by virtue of our goodness, but by His goodness, that's when we allow Him to carry us through every season of life.

Q: God's Word and the Holy Spirit have inspired your ministry. But is there someone in particular who has influenced your journey of faith in a profound way? Tell us about that.

A: One of my heroes is George Müller, a great man of faith and Christian evangelist. Over his lifetime, he established 117 Christian schools, distributed 285,000 Bibles, funded more than 400 missionaries, cared for over 10,000 orphans, and preached to more than 3 million people.

George Müller once shared, "For more than 70 years, I have not been anxious." He was a man who truly lived the let-go life! Sometimes, when there was no food for his orphanages, he would get the children to pray together—and provisions would arrive at their door.

I love how Müller had the habit of reading Scriptures and meditating on the Word first thing every morning, and just letting his soul be happy in the Lord. That was the secret to his long life of 93 years, and he was a healthy and joyful man till the very end. He's definitely someone who has influenced my journey of faith in a profound way.

Q: What's next for Joseph Prince Ministries? Can you share what the Lord's placed on your heart concerning future projects and events?

A: I just want to continue to be faithful with what the Lord has placed in my hands. Above all the future plans we have for the ministry, my heart is for more people to discover the gospel of grace. Time is of the essence, and there are so many more precious people who still need to hear the gospel and let the love of Christ transform their lives from the inside out!

TRANSFORMATION
UNDERSTAND OUR TRUE IDENTITY IN CHRIST.

How can you let go of the stress and anxiety of this season? Pastor Joseph explains at Daystar.com/JosephPrince!

Giving: GOD'S GIFT TO YOU

What if giving actually is about you? Often, we think of giving as something only benefiting the person on the receiving end, but the Bible paints a far bigger picture.

In fact, if you were to read all the verses dealing with money, you'd find many of them aren't just about giving to help those in need - but reaching out with hope in a way that impacts the giver for eternity.

In Proverbs it says, "One man gives freely, yet gains even more; another withholds unduly, but comes to poverty." (Proverbs 11:24)

That's because when you hold on too tightly to what you have, fear and insecurity can creep in, robbing you of joy and peace. But when you see the big picture, you can let go of the things of today and live in fullness, knowing God can be trusted with tomorrow.

So why not start now? If you have a heart to give and reach the world for Christ, make a tax-deductible donation to Daystar by December 31st using the enclosed form, or simply submit your gift online at Daystar.com/Giving. Keep in mind there are no requirements for generosity.

Just give cheerfully knowing you are blessing others and storing up treasure in heaven that can never be shaken. Through this special offering, you're gaining an everlasting reward that can only be received by giving - God's gift to you!

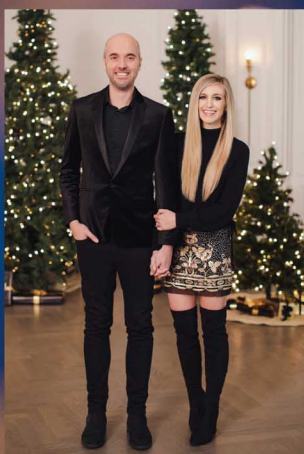

All I Want for You This Christmas!

In John 10:10, Jesus offers an "abundant" life. However, during the holiday season, life can seem all-too-abundant with so much to do and so little time!

When I think about Jesus' words, I believe He was promising something far richer than lists and deadlines, busyness and exhaustion. Like so many of you, my life is full of to-do's. But they're only truly productive when they create a stronger connection with the people that matter most!

This Christmas, I pray you'll take time to rest in God's presence and spend precious moments with family and friends - a gift that will help you live an abundant life and love others well. Merry Christmas from the Lamb Family!

Joni
