You Are Loved
MARCUS LAMB

"Recently, I saw Marcus Lamb preach a message on Daystar about never giving up on your dreams. While he was praying for people, I felt as though Jesus walked into my living room. I didn't see Him but felt His presence, and it was such a precious moment. I am so grateful for Daystar and honored to partner with you in sharing Jesus with the world!"

SHARING GOD'S LOVE IN BROTHELS & BEYOND

WITH NIKE ADEYEMI

Q: From an early age, you've always had a heart to reach women working in the sex industry as prostitutes. How did you get involved in helping them escape life on the streets?

A: I remember driving by the red light district and seeing prostitutes lining the streets at night. I would feel compassion in my heart for them, not judgment. I wondered what kind of hardship would make a woman want to sell her body for money. I later learned that most of them are victims of circumstance and were unwittingly lured into that lifestyle. With this in mind, I began to think and pray about how I could reach them.

Q: Your passion to rescue young women from sex trafficking and prostitution eventually led you to start the Real Woman Foundation. Can you share an example of a life that's been transformed through your work?

A: There are so many examples, but one striking story is that of Ruth. Ruth did so well in school, graduating cum laude, and continues to be an inspiration to the other girls.

When Ruth was brought to us, we were told she was to learn a trade – tailoring. But while being interviewed by one of the staff at the foundation, it was discovered that she was fluent in English and very intelligent. I stepped in, asking Ruth if she wanted to go back to school to continue her education and she said yes.

While in school, she would bring her friends around and was quite upfront and willing to share her story to inspire others. Ruth did so well in school and graduated cum laude and continues to be an inspiration to the other girls.

Q: In 1995, you and your husband, Pastor Sam Adeyemi, founded Daystar Christian Centre in Lagos, Nigeria. Describe how the church is impacting your nation and training Christian leaders.

A: We had this vision of raising people who would influence the community; people who would have integrity; people who would say no to corruption; people who would thrive in different businesses and all kinds of professions so they can be a witness for Christ wherever they go.

Today, we have training systems at all levels targeted at different categories of people, notable among which are the Daystar Academy, a 100 to 500 level training system, and the Daystar Leadership Academy, a leadership, business and ministry school all rolled into one.

At Daystar, we are passionate about raising leaders because when a leader gets better, the community gets better.

Q: In addition to leading a growing church, you're also a dedicated wife and mother of three. How do you balance your work-life commitments to make sure your family stays healthy and strong?

A: I absolutely depend on the grace of God. Family is very dear to my heart and growing up, I always looked forward to having a family of my own. I prioritize family above other responsibilities and spend time with my husband and children. I try not to get carried away with the immediate demands of ministry or business because I know someone needs to be there for the children. Career wise, I delegate a lot. D.L. Moody said, "I'd rather put 10 men to work than do the work of 10 men." So I try to train people and make sure my assistants understand my values, especially the value I place on family.

Q: Why is it so important for women of faith to encourage and inspire one another to pursue God with passion?

A: We should inspire one another to pursue God because He is our everything. He is a God of love and remains the primary reason for our existence, so we owe Him everything.

In this world, we will have challenges and tribulations. We should encourage each other to pursue God so we are not weary and tempted to throw in the towel.

Q: As a young girl, did you ever think you would have the worldwide influence God has given you today? Why or why not?

A: As a young girl in elementary school, I really didn't think about having worldwide influence. But as the first child of my parents, I was walking in leadership without even realizing it. I was outspoken and didn't like injustice, hate, name-calling etc. Those were the things that moved me to tears as a child.

When I gave my heart to God, I began to really sense God's calling, especially when the scripture in Isaiah 61:1-4 started to resonate with me. I knew I would be interested in affecting people and began to take my influence more seriously.

Q: Of the many things you've done over the years in ministry, what accomplishment or project stands out as your favorite?

A: The work at the Real Woman Foundation and The Love Home Orphanage stands out for me because I get to see lives changed through love. It's so fulfilling to see young children who had been abandoned with no hope now thriving and achieving so much with the opportunities given to them at the home.

“WE ARE PASSIONATE ABOUT RAISING LEADERS BECAUSE WHEN A LEADER GETS BETTER, THE COMMUNITY GETS BETTER.”

Blessing Brazil

As a parent, it's always a joy to see my children lift up the name of Jesus! That's why I'm so proud of my son-in-law, Joshua Brown, who recently traveled to Brazil to speak at the Extreme Worship Conference in Rio de Janeiro.

Hosted by worship artists, Emerson Cruz and Fernanda Brum, this event was an incredible opportunity for Josh to share what the Holy Spirit has laid on his heart for this generation. He and Rachel were so honored to be a part of an experience created to inspire the world to pursue God with passion and purpose!

From how to become an "atmosphere changer," to thriving while waiting on God's promises, to walking in supernatural breakthrough – Josh spoke truth in love and lives were transformed for eternity!

When I think about God's faithfulness in guiding our children and their spouses, I'm overwhelmed. Watching Him use their gifts and talents for His glory is an answer to prayer and an indescribable blessing! Having said that, I want to encourage you today.

If you have a child that's not living for Christ, put your trust in the Lord. It's hard to imagine, but He loves your kids more than you do and knows exactly how to capture their hearts.

Your son or daughter's past, present, and future is secure in God's hands. So freely surrender every fear and frustration, and receive His peace. In doing so, I believe you, too, will one day experience the joy of watching them lift up the name of Jesus!

No one is immune from suffering, and Pastor Jentezen's honesty was so refreshing! Thank you, Daystar, for airing stories we can all relate to and learn from. Keep up the great work!"

"For years, my family has struggled with issues that have torn us apart. It's been so painful, and I had almost lost faith that we could ever reconcile until I found Daystar. Watching the Lamb family love each other has encouraged me, and I am now believing for full restoration in our lives. Thank you for giving me hope!"
